INTRODUCTION

THE CANADIAN TRADE INDEX is designed to provide buyers and sellers of Canada and other countries with an authoritative directory of all products manufactured in Canada, and the names of the firms making them. It includes a complete list of Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products, irrespective of membership in the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Their products are classified under some 10,000 different headings.

This new edition of the INDEX includes details of many new firms and a great variety of new products, some of them being made in Canada for the first time. In addition, it embodies countless thousands of changes of names, addresses, products listings, foreign representatives, etc.

The accurate and detailed classifications in this directory will ordinarily enable prospective purchasers to get in touch at once with manufacturers of the goods desired. Where specialized information is needed, buyers are invited to call on the gratuitous service of the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Association. It is suggested that importers abroad should first communicate with the nearest Canadian Government Trade Commissioner, consulting the list of their addresses on pages 263-4 of the Export Section. Representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada are invited to call at the Head Office of the Association where they will be given every possible assistance.

Users of the INDEX will find the regular advertising sections invaluable in supplementing the information contained in the alphabetical and classified sections of the Directory. Advertising page numbers are indicated opposite the classified and alphabetical listings of advertisers and, in addition, your attention is invited to the classified Business Cards beginning on page 1065. For other classifications of advertisers see Table of Contents on page 3.

The publishers wish to thank the manufacturers, government departments, and other organizations who have furnished information upon which this book is based.

GOT YOU SCRATCHING YOUR HEAD?

WHY NOT LET

SURPAKOTE

RUST PREVENTIVES

WORK FOR YOU TO INCREASE PROFITS . . . BY PREVENTING CORROSION?

SURPASS PETROCHEMICALS . . . The newest name in the rust preventive field in Canada, is now in a position to supply high quality rust preventives for protection of ferrous and non-ferrous metals under a wide range of conditions of storage, transit and fabrication.

KNOW-HOW AND FORMULAE gathered from over 30 YEARS' EXPERIENCE in the rust preventive field can be used to SERVE YOU.

Our policy of specializing in the research and development of corrosion control compounds, has resulted in quality rust preventives that provide longer lasting protection at lower cost.

The application of SPECIALLY DESIGNED SURPAKOTE rust preventives assures the arrival of RUST FREE machinery and metal parts in OVERSEAS shipments.

DO YOU HAVE A CORROSION PROBLEM . . .

. . . that you feel is not being adequately controlled by the rust preventive you are now using?

If so . . . why not let one of our qualified corrosion engineers discuss your problem with you; if, after carefully studying the factors involved, we decide that one of our standard corrosion inhibitors will not do a better job more economically than the one that you are now using . . . we are prepared to turn your problem over to our experienced research staff and have them custom formulate a product to meet your specific requirements. No such problem is too large or too small, and of course, you are under no obligation whatever.

BETTER PROTECTION . . . AT LOWER COST!

800 horsepower—with a V-belt drive

HERE'S an example of how power transmission equipment from United Steel puts horsepower to work for industry.

This V-belt drive at an Ontario paper mill has fixed centres and is equipped with a take-up idler. Thirty high capacity V-belts transmit power from an 800 h.p. motor to drive the lineshaft on one of the company's big paper-making machines.

Off-the-shelf-delivery—In addition to engineered drives like this, United Steel carries large stocks of standard power transmission equipment—some of which is illustrated below—to make off-the-shelf-delivery service possible. If you're going to pick it up, it's ready when your truck arrives—otherwise, it's on the way to you in quick time.

There's a United Steel warehouse located to serve you—just call: TORONTO, RO. 2-8242; MONTREAL, WE. 4277; KIRKLAND LAKE, 1017; SUDBURY, OS. 4-3053. Dodge Manufacturing Division, United Steel Corporation Limited, 58 Pelham Avenue, Toronto 9.

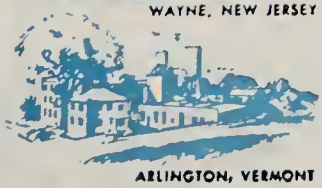
MACK molds for the leaders

Leaders of industry count on MACK for precision plastic molding. Many of these have been steady MACK customers for over a quarter of a century. Complete satisfaction from mold design to finished product is the reason why MACK enjoys a reputation for reliability in plastic molding. Whether your production involves large or small quantities in simple or intricate designs, the name MACK is assurance of finished-right, priced-right and delivered-on-time molded plastics.



Let MACK figure it in plastics

It's good business to let MACK figure on your plastic molding needs because MACK is one of the original plastic molders. Years of experience in design, mold making, choice of materials and finishing mean sound, economical production from start to completion. MACK engineers are available for consultation. They will recommend the one best design and the most efficient method of producing your finished plastic product or component part. Estimates will be made without obligation; call or write, today.

● For many years DOSCO has believed in teamwork. So much so that now it's become a habit . . . right from the ground up.

The mining of the ore to the shipping of the finished product is accomplished by Canadians working together.

ALL DOSCO teamwork is passed on to YOU . . . the large industry and the small business. Great or small, each equally receives that DOSCO know-how and experience . . . gained by teamwork.

CRANES AND HOISTS

Bringing new life to the science of lifting materials, Provincial Engineering designs and builds cranes up to 450 tons capacity. Every major industry uses Provincial Cranes.

TRANSMISSION TOWERS

Provincial service on Transmission Towers covers all phases ... design, detail, fabrication and erection, including conductor stringing. The new Provincial Transmission Tower plant offers great advantage to Public Utilities.

With a new plant laid out and equipped especially for manufacture of Transmission Towers on a production line basis, Provincial Engineering is able to offer quick delivery, consistently lowered costs and new galvanizing techniques that virtually eliminate faulty material.

Integrated with these improved manufacturing methods is an Engineering staff able to take advantage of all the quality control and cost-cutting equipment available.

INDUSTRIAL MECHANICAL CONTRACTORS

Provincial Engineering maintains a staff of over 2000 men, each individually skilled in his own particular trade. These men work as a team to provide an inclusive installation service for every kind of industry. One overall direction, one centralised head make possible tight schedules, lower costs, swifter work.

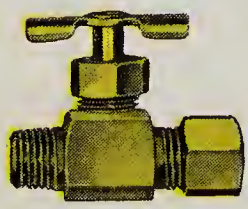
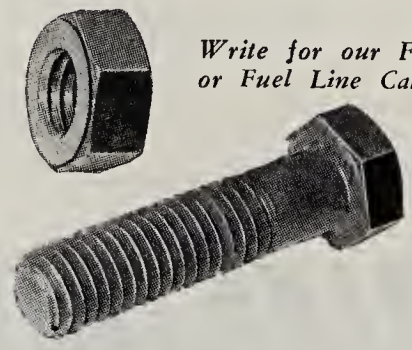
KEEP Your Production Costs To a MINIMUM

Have your Screw Machine parts made in our plant —and release your machines for other production.

Our modern plant is fully equipped with the latest AUTOMATICS to ensure highest accuracy in production. High speed machines enable us to deliver finished products ready for assembly at reasonable cost. We can handle parts small or large, from ⅛" to 2" capacity.





Our background combines the experience of both AUTOMOTIVE HARDWARE LTD. and AUTOMATIC SCREW MACHINE PRODUCTS LTD. — allied companies for many years.

In addition to our custom work, we offer Canadian manufacturers a full line of FASTENERS, CAP SCREWS, NUTS, etc.

We also carry a full stock of BRASS FUEL LINE FITTINGS for the automotive and related industries.

QUALITY SERVICE

We're building a BIG one for you!

This artist's impression over an aerial photograph provides a bird's-eye view of the $16 million Burlington Skyway, as it will appear when completed. The 132-foot clearance span over Lake Ontario's Burlington ship channel to the Port of Hamilton, is flanked by two 2,100-foot long approaches. The longest truss span will be 250 feet. The Runnymede steel in these approaches forms the largest part of the project and represents almost $4 million of the total cost.

The Burlington Skyway is the largest steel contract ever awarded in Ontario—two 2,100-ft. long approaches needing 9,300 tons of steel—now being fabricated at our new Dixie plant. This is only one of many Ontario Department of Highway bridges that Runnymede has underway. Another is the Saugeen River bridge near Port Elgin, Ont. Recently completed—bridges at Spanish River, Wanapitei River and the French River. The bigger they are the better we like them for we are geared to handle the big ones—but we build the small jobs as well. Fabricating and erecting steel for bridges and buildings of all types—our engineering division and fabricating and erecting crews are organized to provide expert assistance and quick service at all times. For information, quotations and steel, a little or a lot, call Runnymede.

Welding and Cutting Apparatus

HAND APPARATUS available from LINDE for application of oxy-acetylene processes includes welding and heating blowpipes; cutting blowpipes, attachments, and nozzles; equipment for descaling, flame-priming, and many other LINDE methods for treating and forming metals. The OXWELD brand of apparatus is supplied directly from LINDE offices and warehouses. PUROX welding and cutting equipment and PREST-O-LITE air-acetylene appliances for soldering and brazing are distributed by industrial and automotive jobbers. Write for catalog, specifying apparatus in which you are interested.

MACHINE APPARATUS—OXWELD apparatus for mechanized applications includes portable and stationary oxy-acetylene shape-cutting machines; straight-line cutting machines; flame-hardening apparatus; bar and billet cutoff machines; equipment for automatic welding; and tractor units for plate-edge preparation. Write for catalog, specifying type of equipment.

"UNIONMELT" APPARATUS, for use in the submerged melt electric process, makes high-quality welds in any commercially used thickness of steel at high speed and without flash, glare, or sparks. Speed and current values are preset by controls adjusted by the operator. Either alternating or direct welding current can be used. Write for equipment catalog.

GENERATORS and MANIFOLDS—OXWELD acetylene generators produce low-cost acetylene and are available for both portable and stationary use—with generating capacities of from 30 to 9,000 cu. ft. per hour. OXWELD oxygen and acetylene manifolds are used for centralizing the oxygen and acetylene supply from cylinders. Catalog sent on request.

WELDING RODS and SUPPLIES—OXWELD welding rods and fluxes are of exceptionally high quality. The many kinds and sizes of OXWELD rods make it possible to select the one that will give results on each job. The OXWELD line also includes gloves, goggles, lighters, hose and fittings, and asbestos paper. Rods, fluxes, and supplies are available from LINDE or from automotive and industrial jobbers. Write for descriptive price list.

"HELIARC" WELDING—This high speed electric process makes clean, smooth welds, without flux, in practically all kinds of commercial metals. LINDE supplies equipment and inert shielding gas. Write for further information.

SIGMA WELDING—This is a superfast production method for welding aluminum, stainless steel, and other metals with a consumable electrode in a protective shield of inert gas. LINDE furnishes equipment, gases, and supplies for this electric welding process. Complete information on request.

OXYGEN . . . ACETYLENE . . . CARBIDE LINDE oxygen, PREST-O-LITE acetylene, and UNION carbide are widely distributed through plants and warehouses located for dependable deliveries at low transportation costs. Full information about all LINDE products and processes can be obtained from any LINDE office.

MULTIPLE ADVANTAGES OF MULTIWALL PAPER BAGS

...proved with 400 different products

Foods, chemicals, fertilizers, cement, and other building materials—nearly 400 different products in all—are now being packaged in multiwall paper bags. That's convincing proof that an increasing number of manufacturers recognize these advantages:

1. Economy in packaging.
2. Protection against moisture penetration and contamination.
3. Protection against losses due to siftage and retention.
4. Easy to handle—saving time and labor.
5. Preferred by customers.

Fast, economical packaging is possible with St. Regis bag-filling machines which automatically weigh and pack the product into self-closing multiwall valve paper bags.

Wire ties also are available for the quick closing of open-mouth multiwall bags.

St. Regis packaging engineers will be glad to discuss your packaging problems with you. Write or call your nearest St. Regis Office.

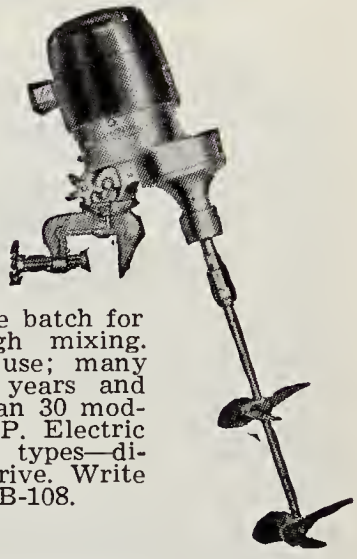
Lightnin Mixers



COMPLETE FLUID MIXING SERVICE

SIDE ENTERING. For tanks up to 6 million gallons. Sizes 1 to 25 HP. Widest choice of motors, drives, materials of construction. With choice of stuffing boxes, repackable without draining tank — or with quickly replaceable rotary shaft seal that eliminates stuffing-box maintenance forever. Write for Catalogue B-104.

TOP ENTERING propeller types (not shown). For open or closed tanks. Gear drive; direct drive—30 models, sizes ¼ to 3 HP. Write for Catalogue B-103.

LABORATORY MIXERS (not shown). Complete selection, including explosion proof type. Write for descriptive Bulletin B-112.

PORTABLE. Make any open tank or container an efficient mixing vessel. Powerful double-mix action rotates and tumbles the batch for rapid, thorough mixing. Thousands in use; many in service 20 years and more. More than 30 models, ⅛ to 3 HP. Electric and air driven types—direct or gear drive. Write for Catalogue B-108.

YOUR MIXING RESULTS FULLY GUARANTEED. Every Lightnin Mixer is guaranteed mechanically — and unconditionally guaranteed to do the mixing job for which it is recommended. This guarantee is backed by 30 years of specialization in fluid mixing only; a nation-wide engineering staff, and unique laboratory and testing facilities that make possible 100% accurate prediction of fluid mixing results.

TOP OR BOTTOM ENTERING. These turbine-type and paddle-type units provide the one correct flow pattern for mixing large volumes of fluids, with results guaranteed. Completely adaptable to open or closed tanks—any fluid mixing operation. Hundreds of standard power-speed combinations. Sizes 1 to 500 HP. Closed-tank models available with stuffing box—or with new rotary seal that eliminates repacking, runs without adjustment, and can be replaced in minutes if ever necessary without dismantling the mixer or removing it from the tank. Interchangeable speeds on all models. Write for Catalogues B-102 and B-111.

FAST SERVICE. Get a guaranteed mixer recommendation, firm price and delivery, on any fluid mixing job, by phone without waiting. Just call your nearest Lightnin sales representative.

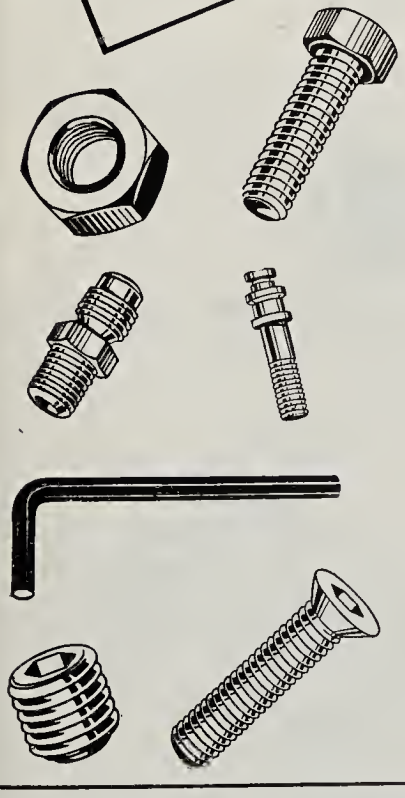
STANDARD SCREW PRODUCTS
Supplied From Stock

Cap screws, set screws, S.F. nuts . . . these in their untold thousands make up the products that are termed "Standard" in our Industry. Wherever your specifications call for fasteners, check the Acme catalogue for complete data. Chances are, that an Acme Standard will fill the bill economically and satisfactorily.



SPECIAL SCREW PRODUCTS
In Quantities to Order

Perhaps it's a non-standard item . . . or a tiny fastener that hasn't been designed or machined to exact dimensions. Then again, it might be that a complete modification of a sub-assembly is required. At any rate, investigation will reveal the trouble and Acme's Screw Product Division can help you solve it to your satisfaction.

ALLEN HEX-SOCKET CAP AND SET SCREWS AND KEYS

Allen Hex-Socket Cap and Set Screws are in constant demand because of their rugged, wear-resisting strength. Also available from stock are Allen Dowel Pins, Shoulder Screws and Key and Screw Assortments.

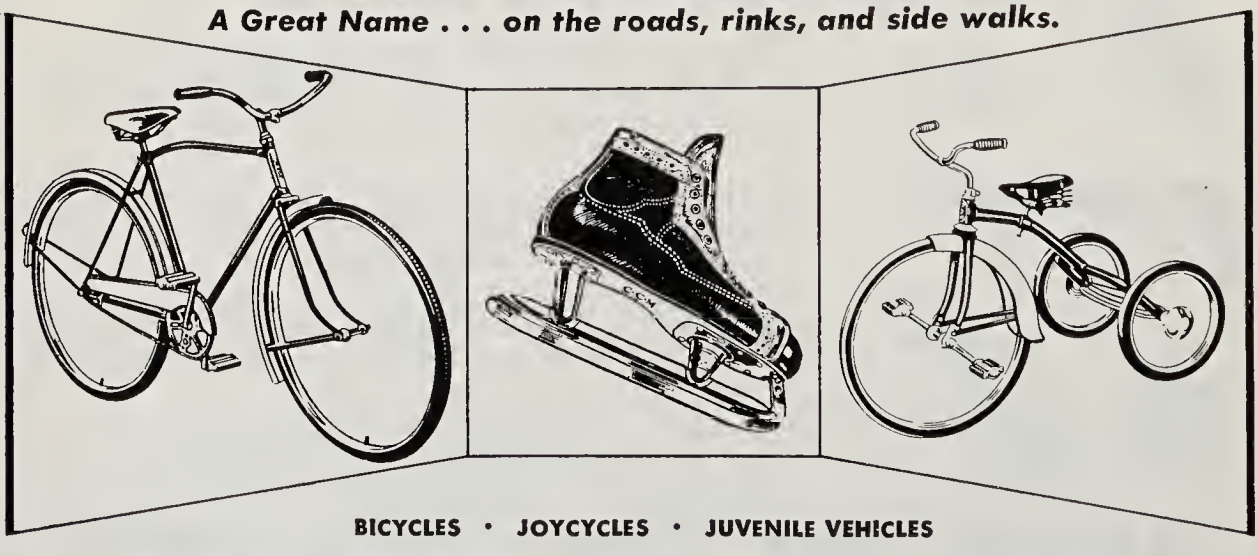
CROSS CORRUGATED
26 B.G. GALVANIZED STEEL
24 GAUGE ALUMINUM

Three times stronger than common ribbed types.

Applied in half the time normally required.



This remarkable new cross corrugated roll gives a stronger, tighter roofing and siding —actually three times stronger than previous types. Side laps are eliminated, and, because of greater strength, sheathing can be placed at 16" and 18" centres—making for greater construction economy. Rolls on like a carpet. Can easily be placed by one man.

THE CHALLENGE OF PROGRESS

Canada's progress of recent years offers an irresistible challenge. Her stepped-up industrial program, her ever-expanding mining and oil interests, the St. Lawrence Seaway & Power Project, are just some of the signs of Canada's growth. Marine Industries Limited is proud to be a part of that growth and to meet the challenge of progress in dredging Canada's waterways and in building, repairing and converting the ships that sail them.

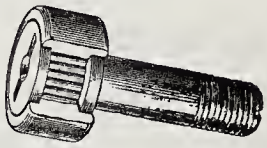
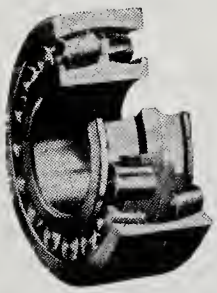
One of these Torrington Bearings may solve a design problem for you...



Type DC Needle Bearing is suitable for applications where size, weight and cost must be held to a minimum.



Type NBC Needle Bearing is designed for aircraft applications to be used in conjunction with standard AN bolts.

Type PN (Double Row) Needle Bearing meets all aircraft pulley requirements for primary control applications.

Type CR Needle Bearing is designed for cam follower service and rolling loads, where outer race is not supported by housing.

Self-Aligning Spherical Roller Bearing is designed for heavy-duty applications to meet conditions of misalignment.

Double Row Tapered Roller Bearing carries heavy radial and thrust loads where maximum stability is required.

Single Row Straight Roller Bearing is adaptable for high radial loads where simplicity of design, assembly and maintenance are important.

Type HD Needle Bearing is particularly suitable for severe load applications and the most exacting service conditions.

It may not have occurred to you that there are so many different types of Torrington Bearings—or that the completeness of the line of these modern, anti-friction bearings makes them adaptable to many design requirements.

Pictured above are eight different types—and there are others, all different in design, to assure you a wide choice to meet any specific requirement. Each is engineered for a particular task—or combination of design requirements. Individually each offers the same characteristic advantages of unit design, anti-friction operation, high capacity, efficient lubrication, simple installation and maintenance.

The result is that in almost any application where Torrington Bearings are employed the design problem is simplified; operating efficiency and service life are increased; manufacturing costs are reduced; and sales features are added.

Investigate for yourself how the advantages of Torrington's complete line of anti-friction bearings can be of assistance in your product planning. Full information is available on request, and our engineering staff is ready to help you with any design requirement.

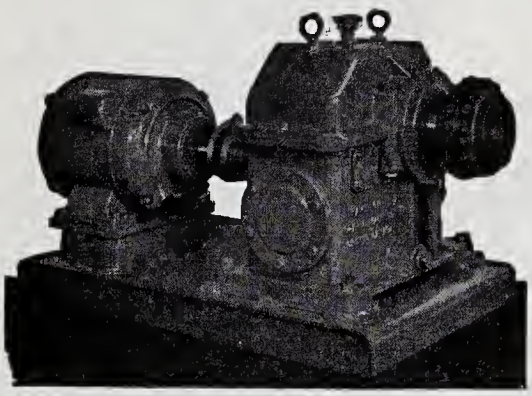
Speed Reducers

Used wherever High Speed Power is applied to Low Speed Use



Worm gear and helical gear units, in single and multiple reduction, are made in a wide range of sizes. Send for catalogue on either of these types, listing standard sizes, with power capacities and detail specifications. These are high grade, heavy duty gear drives, designed and rated for 24-hour continuous service. Ratios are available up to six thousand to one in simple, efficient, self-contained units.

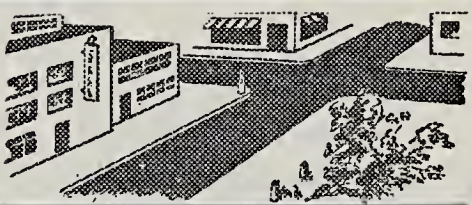
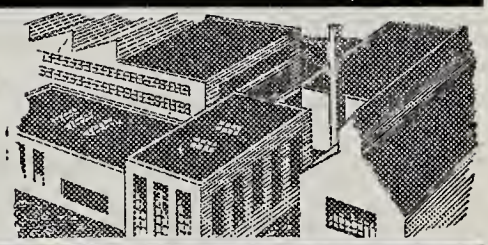
HUSKY ASPHALT does the job better

Processed from a pure asphaltic crude. Husky Asphalt starts as a better natural asphalt with extra quality characteristics. Husky Asphalt is a Principal Product, not a residual or by-product. It is refined by asphalt specialists to a wide range of specifications.



. . . builds better roads

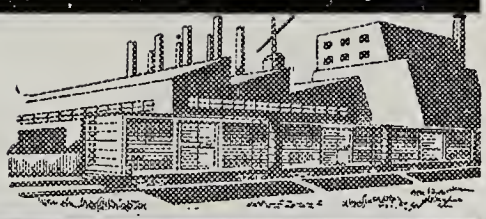
Husky provides a complete line of paving asphalts, including penetrations and cutback raad ails; emulsified asphalts are also available. The advice and co-operation af Husky technologists is available on all types of jobs.



. . . aids town planning

Husky Asphalt presents possibilities of improvements on a budget to towns and cammunities, even those with limited finances. Illustrated bulletins with helpful information will be gladly sent ta engineers or representatives of communities interested in starting an improvement program.

. . . makes superior roofing



Husky Roofing Asphalts have been proved under the most severe conditions. In the rigorous weather canditions of the western prairie and mountain areas, with temperatures ranging from 45 deg. below zero ta 110 deg. above, Husky Raofing Asphalts have remained impervious to constant exposure.

. . . engineered for industry

If there is a better and more economical way to do your jab with asphalt, Husky can supply the infarmatian. Because Asphalt, its uses and patentialities, are the number one project of Husky operators and Husky research.

"SHAWINIGAN" will be there!

Throughout its history Shawinigan Chemicals Limited has been helping industry to greater heights and better things. Wherever the application of industrial chemicals promised an easier, better way of doing things, "Shawinigan" was there. "Shawinigan's" many valuable chemicals are in use everywhere today—in industrial oxy-acetylene welding techniques . . . in the manufacture of fabrics, furnishings and lacquers . . . in the tires of great transports which carry products along the highways . . . in the vital field of agriculture . . . in places of business and places of entertainment. In nearly every sphere of our daily living, "Shawinigan" is there.

Research at "Shawinigan" is never-ending. In its laboratories, new chemicals and new uses for existing ones are constantly being developed. Thus, whenever and wherever the use of fine organic chemicals will help industry to grow and prosper . . . "Shawinigan" will be there!

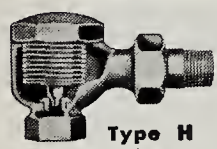
SARCO STEAM TRAPS

Only Sarco makes 5 distinctly different types of traps—can give you impartial trapping recommendations. For best trapping results, fit the trap to the requirements of the job.

Sarco Balanced Pressure Thermostatic Traps. Greatest capacity per dollar cost. Large air venting capacity. Same head and seat, 0-300 psi. Freeze-proof. Size ⅜″ to 2″, for pressures to 300 psi. Catalog 250-A.



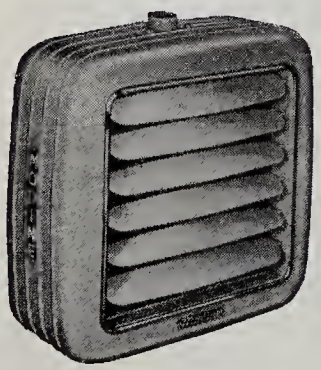
Sarco Camlift Bucket Traps. New, powerful Camlift valve mechanism permits greater discharge with no increase in size of trap body. Sizes ½″ to 2″, for pressures to 900 psi. Catalog 360-A.

Sarco Float-Thermostatic Traps. Discharges condensate continuously at steam temperature and without shock. Responds immediately to varying loads and pressures. Sizes ¾″ to 2½″, for pressures to 200 psi. Catalog 450-A.

Sarco Thermodynamic Traps. Valve head, a solid stn. st. disc, is only moving part. Same head and seat to 600 psi. Not affected by super-heat, water-hammer, corrosive condensate. Sizes ½″, ¾″, and 1″, for pressures to 600 psi. Catalog 255-A.

Sarco Liquid Expansion Thermostatic Traps. Adjustable to discharge condensate below 212°F. Freeze-proof. Not affected by water-hammer or pressure pulsations. Sizes ½″ to 2″, for pressures to 350 psi. Catalog 260-A.

SARCO Heating Specialties



Type H Radiator Trap

Sarco Radiator Traps and Valves for maximum heating efficiency and long trouble-free service. Complete line of specialties includes air eliminators, boiler return traps and balancing fittings. Catalog 150-A.

SARCO Strainers

Protects trap and valve mechanisms from damage by dirt or scale in pipe lines. For all commercial pressures and fluids. Sizes ¼″ to 10″. Catalog 1200-A.

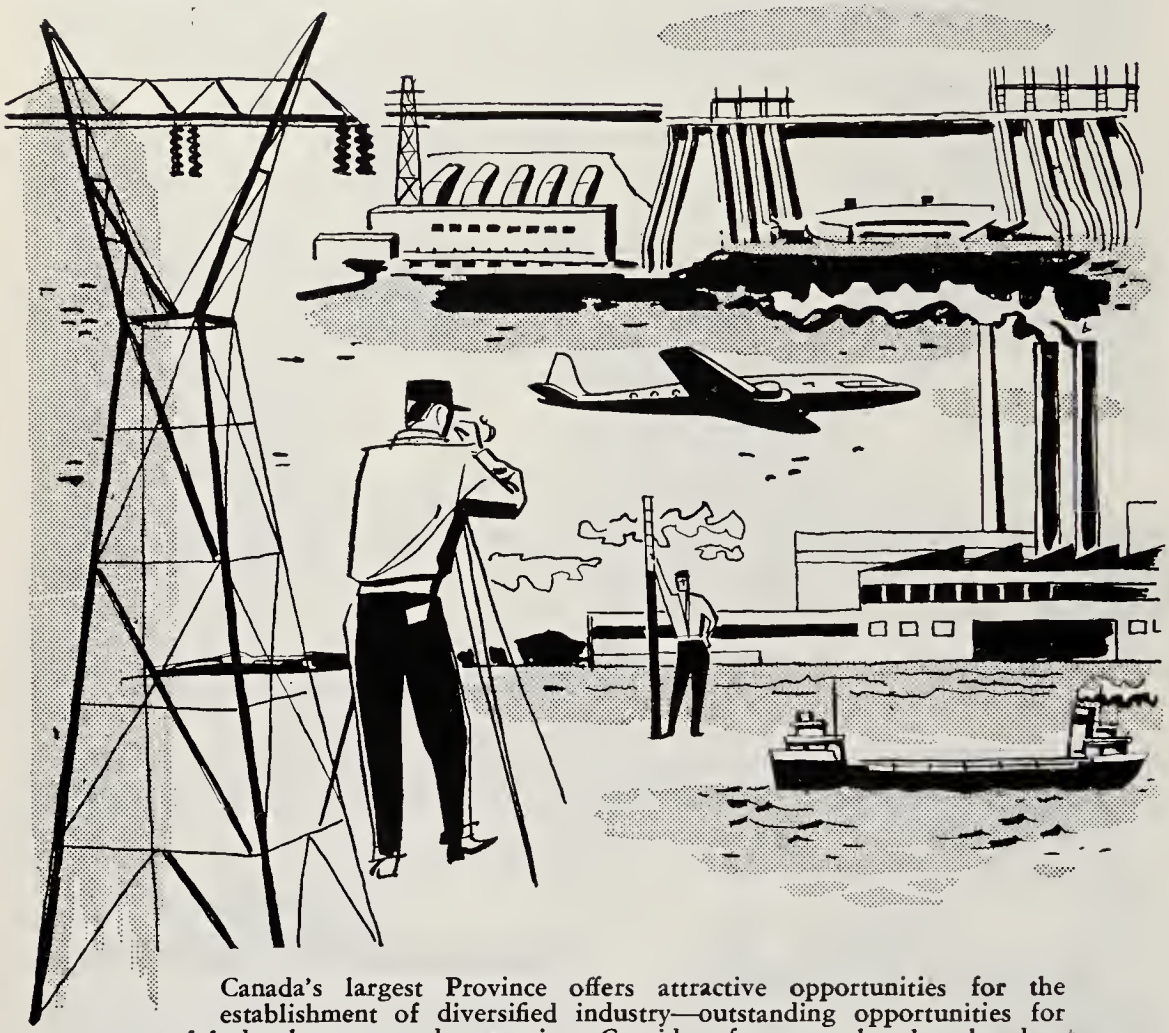
SARCO Temperature Controllers

A complete line of Self-Powered Controllers for water heaters, converters, and all types of process work. Simple, reliable, inexpensive. Sizes ½″ to 8″, temperature ranges between 0° and 300°F. Catalog 600-A.

Sarco Electric Indicating Temperature Controllers for controlling electric heating elements, steam, water, oil, brine, gas, air and other heating or cooling operations where continuous indication of controlled temperature is required. Temperatures minus 90° to plus 650°F. Catalog 1025.

TR-21 Controller

MODINE UNIT HEATERS



A complete line for horizontal or vertical air delivery as well as a power-throw type.

Discharge air temperatures of 110° to 120°F are correctly related to air velocities for perfect heating comfort with lower fuel costs. Safe and economical direct-from-pipe suspension.

Compare and you will agree that Modine is tops in unit heater values. Write for Catalog No. 155.

Quebec — Site of Opportunity!

Canada's largest Province offers attractive opportunities for the establishment of diversified industry—outstanding opportunities for successful development and expansion. Consider, for example, the abundant resources for industrial progress and prosperity provided in the 25,000 square miles of Quebec served by The Shawinigan Water and Power Company and the Quebec Power Company.

- Reliable electric power service at reasonable rates.
- Close, prolific sources of raw materials.
- Reliable, skilled labour force.
- Excellent export routes to world markets: modern air terminals and highways; two of the world's largest transcontinental railways; the great inland seaports of the St. Lawrence.
- Stable government.

These two companies invite your enquiries regarding the opportunities awaiting you in the territories served by them. When you are considering the location of a new plant, write to:

HAMILTON...
the Heart of Canada's Golden Horseshoe

INDUSTRIAL SITES—800 industrial acres, newly acquired by Hamilton by annexation in Saltfleet Township. Good industrial sites also available in district, including Aldershot-Nelson-Burlington area, Dundas, Grimsby, Stoney Creek-Saltfleet area, Caledonia, Hagersville and Milton.

INDUSTRIES—over 500 of them, including two of Canada's four largest basic steel producers, manufacturing a complete line of products and supplies.

MARKETS— over a quarter of a million people in our metropolitan area and over two million within 50 miles of the City—the best consumer market in Canada.

RAILWAYS—T.H. & B. (connecting the C.P.R. and New York Central) and the C.N.R.

HARBOUR—completely land-locked, with the largest tonnage of any inland harbour in Canada, and the third largest tonnage of any Canadian port. When the St. Lawrence Seaway is opened up, our harbour will be an ocean port.

We would like to have YOUR ENQUIRY—a letter or call to K. A. Grant, Hamilton District Industrial Commissioner, will be answered promptly and in complete confidence.

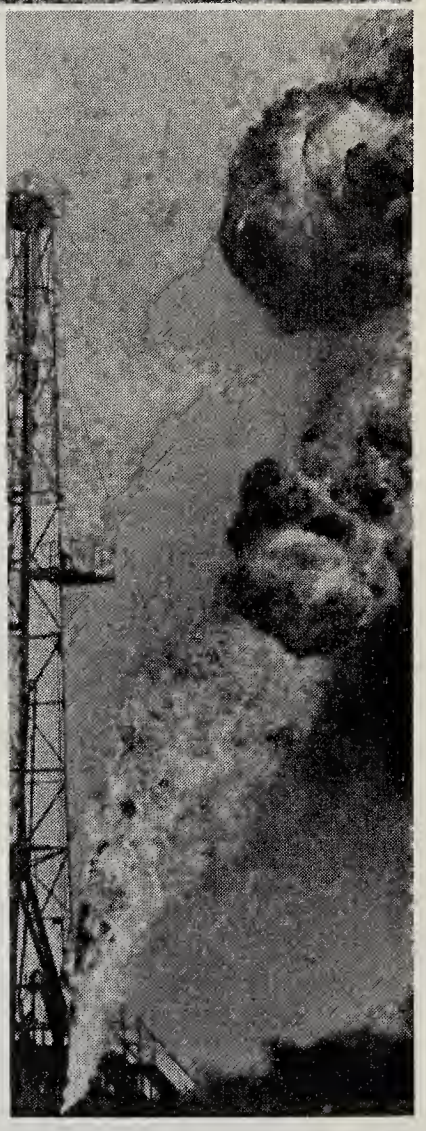
New Industrial horizons are opening in the Canadian West with Edmonton the focal point.

Industrial and commercial development in the Edmonton area during the past decade has topped the $500,000,000 mark and continues at a steadily increasing rate.

Abundant natural gas from the fields surrounding Edmonton does double duty as fuel for low-cost power and a source of raw materials for growing petro-chemical industries.



Secondary industries using primary products and by-products of petro-chemical processes find Edmonton a sound economic location and provide further, healthy diversification to the city's economy.

Expanding, prosperous, local markets and a dominant position in the agricultural economy of the province make Edmonton an important distribution centre. One-half the entire population of the province lives within 100 miles of Edmonton.

"foreign trade"

brings you up-to-the-minute reports of world markets from Canadian Trade Commissioners

In key market areas throughout the world, our Trade Commissioners are continually exploring market opportunities, local preferences, current competition and prices, and other factors important to the Canadian exporter.

If you require specific information, or have a foreign market problem, the services of these men can be helpful and are yours to call upon—either direct or through this Department in Ottawa.

Our Trade Commissioners have wide training and experience. Their "on the spot" reports are published regularly in semi-monthly "FOREIGN TRADE" and will help you keep abreast of world-wide trade developments.

Subscriptions to "FOREIGN TRADE" ($2.00 per year in Canada) should be sent direct to the Queen's Printer, Ottawa.

Foreword to EXPORT SECTION

By RIGHT HON. C. D. HOWE, P.C., M.P.

Minister of Trade and Commerce

CANADA is in fourth place as a world trader, and depends on the exportation of her primary and secondary products to maintain a high standard of living for her people. While the Department of Trade and Commerce can asisst in securing markets for Canadian manufacturers, it is essential that private initiative and enterprise should be exercised by businessmen in exploring new avenues to markets of the world.

The spirit of early pioneers is still abroad in our land, but this must be combined to a greater degree with quality, competitive prices and guaranteed delivery to insure continued success in the foreign field. Participation in international trade fairs enables us to show our wares to prospective purchasers. But, they must be superior or at least equal to those from other lands if sales are to be secured. It is also desirable that Canadian salesmen should proceed overseas to discuss market conditions with our trade commissioners and their agents.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association has contributed substantially down through the years in stimulating Canadian trade. The Canadian Trade Index plays a vital role as an authoritative source of information on Canadian industry. It serves a useful function at home, but it is even more useful in other countries, where businessmen are interested in trading with Canada. This new issue of the Index continues a fine service.

THE VALUE OF EXPORT TRADE

TO THE Canadian manufacturer whose market in Canada is too small to support an economic level of production volume, the export market is an essential part of his overall operation. But to others not immediately faced with this problem it presents attractions which are worthy of the most careful consideration. To the enterprising seller it offers the potential of almost limitless growth, and, as a means of insurance against market instability, it holds the key to a vital element of insurance – the widest possible spread of risk.

In many cases production for export can be realized with little or no increase in overhead, thus lowering unit cost for home as well as export markets. Production can be scheduled on a fairly even keel, despite seasonal variations in the Canadian market, when you are exporting.

A network of properly serviced export outlets can be counted upon to act as a counterbalance in time of weakness in any one market, whether or not it be the domestic market. The Canadian market has been growing by leaps and bounds but, even so, it is subject to external influences and to fluctuations, and will continue to be so both seasonally and over longer periods. Even a strong, expanding home market reaches levelling-off points when expanding production tends to exceed what the market can absorb. By exporting, the manufacturer insures himself against the vagaries of a single market and creates a more even demand for his products. But, as with all insurance, the policy must be in force before the trouble arises.

The post-war rash of currency difficulties, import quotas and other restrictions has tended to create the impression that export business is only for the established specialists and that, as a source of new business it is not worth the bother. Even though the mechanics of exporting may be more complicated than in other days, and though many of our traditional customers are restricted in their dollar purchases, there is lucrative and growing business to be done in many parts of the world including, for many types of products, those countries which are subject to chronic dollar shortages. This outline presents an elementary guide to the techniques of export and to the vast fund of service and assistance which is available for the asking.

IMPORTANT POINTS FOR SUCCESSFUL EXPORTING

1. Make long-term export plans.
2. Make the right products which the export markets want.
3. Use the correct export costing system and prices to the customers which enable them to figure out easily how much the goods will cost them.
4. Offer reasonable credit terms.
5. Get people who have the "know-how" on export and know languages.
6. Visit customers through regular trips overseas, and do not attempt to organize exports from the desk in the home office.
7. Support these travels by multi-language sales promotional literature, by advertising, and by exhibiting at local Trade Fairs, etc.
8. Use the right psychological approach and try to establish more personal and humanized relationships with overseas customers.
9. Avoid high-pressure sales tactics or any artificial enthusiasm.

See Index of Subjects Page 242

THE "HOW TO" OF EXPORT TRADE

A SUCCESSFUL venture into the export field involves much more than simply an extension of domestic sales activity. Each market has its own peculiarities of tastes, customs and business methods, and the general practice of export has its own specialized techniques. A full understanding of these matters, and an appreciation of the problems faced by the overseas customer in being so far removed from his source of supply, is vital.

A brief outline of some of the principles and methods to be employed is given in the following sections. Expert assistance in his problems is available to the exporter at every stage, and later chapters are devoted to the export services of the Department of Trade and Commerce and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. This material is not intended as a comprehensive manual of export practice but its purpose is to indicate broadly some of the matters to which the exporter or prospective exporter should give his attention.

EXPORT SALES CHANNELS

Methods of conducting an export business vary from setting up of branch plants abroad to developing export trade direct by mail. In general, Canadian exporters seem to prefer to establish resident agents or representatives.

The properly selected resident agent is well established in the country, knows the language and the tastes of the people and also knows the best advertising and selling methods. He has an established clientele and up-to-date mailing lists. He can keep the company informed of business trends, of competition, of the credit rating and standing of customers in the country, and can suggest improvements or adaptations of the product to suit the needs of the market. If necessary he can act in collecting unpaid bills and can expedite the shipment of goods or withhold delivery until payment is made. He can investigate orders and enquiries and take immediate action. Being constantly on the ground, he is able to take immediate advantage of every opportunity the moment it arises, and to adjust troubles and complaints that may arise in the conduct of the business. Furthermore, an agent can safeguard payment and collection of extended and disputed drafts.

When choosing an agent a careful check should naturally be made of his standing in the community, his financial responsibility, his integrity, business capabilities and the number and kind of lines he is already carrying. Financial responsibility will be vitally important if the agent is to buy directly and sell on his own account, rather than acting purely on a commission basis, where orders are passed to the Canadian manufacturer for direct shipment to the customer. To some extent the products will be judged on the reputation of the agent himself and on his business practices and capabilities. His judgment in the assessment of credit risks can determine the success of the whole venture.

It is important, as well, to know the number and kind of other lines carried by the agent, to ascertain whether they are complementary or competitive. For example, it may be that a prospective agent is already carrying too many lines and in all probability he will push those lines which are easiest and most remunerative to sell, with the result that the added new lines may suffer in comparison with the other ones.

All this sort of information is obtained and checked by the Canadian Trade Commissioners, who are always willing to advise in the selection of agents. A request for their assistance should be accompanied by full details of the products to be handled.

The decision to appoint as agent an individual or a company will depend to a great extent on the nature of the commodity to be exported, the distribution desired, and the extent of the market. In some countries it may be advisable to choose a large company which is in touch with all wholesale outlets. While this may mean giving exclusive rights to certain wholesalers, it has compensation in that credit risk is reduced to a few outlets, and in some cases goods are paid for upon receipt. Traditional buying habits of medium and smaller outlets may suggest appointment of one large company as agent and sole importer, and this is especially advisable in most Far Eastern markets. Should it be the policy of the exporter to place his goods through as many outlets as possible, then the individual commission representative provides the best medium because he simply solicits orders for the manufacturer. The greatest advantage lies in the ability of such a man to get business for his principals from all possible importers in his field.

Conducting export business through a resident agent is flexible and allows for expansion. It becomes doubly effective if an executive of the Canadian exporting house can visit the agent from time to time. It is also extremely helpful if the agent can be brought to Canada and made thoroughly familiar with the products to be handled — following them through the various stages of manufacture, packaging and shipment. In this manner he will also have the opportunity to meet personnel of the company and the company will have an opportunity to know the agent. Personal contact is much more effective than dealing by correspondence, and it might be emphasized that there is no complete substitute for personal visits to the export markets or prospective markets by a responsible executive of the exporting firm.

Credit Information

Canadian manufacturers may be hesitant to enter the export field because they fear the credit risks involved. On the whole, these risks are no greater in the export field than for the home market. Information regarding the credit rating of foreign firms can usually be obtained through Canadian banks or through the Trade Commissioner Service. The Export Credits Insurance Corporation stands ready to insure exporters against losses occurring through no fault of the seller or buyer which are not covered by ordinary commercial forms of insurance on the export of goods.

Trade Commissioners can also supply confidential information on the credit status of foreign companies and can furnish confidential reports on the activities of overseas firms already acting on behalf of Canadian business houses.

FINANCING EXPORT TRADE

This chapter, kindly prepared by C. K. Highmoor, Manager, International Branch, The Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto, as of April 1st, 1957, outlines the services available through Canadian Banks in connection with export business.

EVERY experienced Canadian exporter will agree that the sale of Canadian goods or services to a country outside Canada is not completed satisfactorily until the full amount of the anticipated proceeds have been placed at his disposal in Canada and in such form that without any encumbrance they can be used in Canada to pay for the wages, materials and other expenses which went into the creation of the goods or services sold. It takes time, effort and materials to produce goods which will compete in other lands with the products of other countries and no matter what care is taken in the preparation of the goods, in their prompt and safe delivery, and in following through to see that the goods are satisfactory to the eventual user, the benefit to the producer and to Canada is likely to be lost if similar care is not taken in the manner in which the proceeds are collected from abroad.

All Canadian banks operate International or Foreign Departments designed to facilitate transactions with other countries, whether these involve payments abroad or collections abroad, and exporters, particularly those expanding their activities into new fields abroad, should avail themselves of the services of their banks in guarding against errors and oversights which can be made in this important matter of obtaining payment in satisfactory form from purchasers of their products, whether in near or distant lands.

Price Quotations

Exporters from Canada seeking buyers abroad are free to express their prices in any form or in any currency which they may desire or find convenient, though naturally they must take into account also the convenience of the buyer. The currency in which they collect the proceeds is no longer a matter in which they are restricted by exchange control regulations in Canada and the principal consideration in the choice is whether the currency tendered is freely convertible in world markets to Canadian dollars or freely transferable in foreign currency to Canadian account. The position with respect to convertibility and transferability is subject to change but is followed closely and always known by all Canadian banks.

Risks of Fluctuation in Exchange Rates

The value in terms of Canadian dollars of all foreign currencies is subject to exchange fluctuations even under Control conditions as no one. not even Governments, can guarantee that current rates of exchange will remain unchanged over any stated period. To some extent these risks can be eliminated both under Control and open market conditions, by means of forward contracts. Canadians buying and selling goods abroad can enter into forward contracts with their banks for reasonable periods ahead and this is well worth considering particularly when they have a firm contract with a buyer or seller abroad. When a forward contract is entered into to deliver or take delivery of a stated amount of foreign exchange, the exchange risk is eliminated but such contracts must be completed at maturity and for the amount contracted regardless of the market rates then prevailing.

Clarity of Contracts

It is most desirable that a commercial contract entered into between seller and buyer shall be clear beyond doubt as to the expense included in the selling price and as to the currency and manner in which the transfer of money from abroad to Canada shall take place. Apart from the sales cost of the goods at the point of production in Canada, there are of course other costs, such as rail and ocean freight, marine and war risk insurance, export license fees, possible storage, transshipment, inspection, wharfage, forwarding, and other similar costs with which every exporter is familiar, but also financing costs such as collection fees, interest, bill stamp duties, and sometimes other costs such as telegraphic fees, protest fees, consular fees, etc., which can be important and should not be overlooked.

It is possible for many of these to be foreseen, avoided, overcome, or at least provided for, at the time the contract is entered into, or in advance to last over a long period of time in the prospective dealings with an overseas buyer. In these latter respects Canadian banks can be most helpful and should be freely consulted.

Financial Standing of Buyer Abroad

It is obviously important for the seller of Canadian goods to know something of the standing of buyers abroad not only from the point of view of moral reputation but also from a financial point of view and before considering the completion of any contract with strangers abroad it is desirable that enquiries should be made to that end. The Canadian banks, Government departments, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Export Credits Insurance Corporation, and other organizations have considerable information on the standing of firms abroad and can always assist in this respect even if enquiries have to be made abroad by mail or by wire. Upon this information depends to no little extent the choice of methods by which payment is to be sought and which in turn requires thought as to the extension of any credit which is to be granted. This in turn depends on the seller's own financial ability to wait, the financial ability of the buyer to pay, the custom of the market into which the goods are to proceed, the Exchange Control regulations governing payment from that market, and the financial reserves of the buying country.

Methods of Payment

There are a number of methods by which payment can be received for shipments abroad and each has its appropriate place in a given set of circumstances.

The simplest, from the Canadian seller's point of view, is a remittance through banking channels at the time of acceptance of an order, in the appropriate currency, but this is a method which would be considered unreasonable by many buyers under normal conditions and one which few exporters would be able or care to require, particularly from firms of standing who would probably be unwilling to so employ their capital, having in mind that the goods may take some time to be prepared and shipped. Then again, under the Exchange Control regulations of their respective countries, buyers may be prohibited from making payment until the goods have either landed at their ports or are at least afloat.

A variation of this method is by direct remittance in the appropriate currency through banking channels when the goods have arrived, within a stated time thereafter, at time of shipment, or at some period mutually arranged between buyer and seller.

Another method is by drawing a draft on the buyers of the goods or their agents in the country of destination or elsewhere and lodging the draft for collection with a bank in Canada with or without shipping documents attached and either awaiting the returns of the collection by mail, air letter, air mail, or cable, or by borrowing thereagainst in Canada at the time the draft is lodged with the Canadian bank.

Still another method is to call for a Commercial Letter of Credit issued by the buyer's bankers and forwarded by mail to the seller or advised by cable through a bank in Canada.

The latter two methods are discussed more fully below under their respective headings.

Collections

Collections can be expressed in any currency but under present conditions are usually expressed in the currency agreed upon between buyer and seller according to his contract and as required under exchange control regulations of the buyer's country. They can call for payment on demand, at sight, or at an appropriate term, such as 30 days' sight, 60 days' sight, 90 days' sight, etc. They can be clean, i.e. not supported by any documents, or can have attached whatever shipping documents are desired.

If a company attaches a complete set of proper invoices, negotiable bills of lading, marine and war risk insurance certificates or policies for an adequate amount, and other documents required for the release of the goods in the country of destination, and these documents are endorsed where required by the seller, the collection normally controls and retains the ownership of the goods until by permission they are released or until the draft is paid.

When delivering a collection to a bank, the amount of the draft must be clearly expressed in words and figures, the name and address of the drawee must be clearly given, and the bank must understand clearly whether the collection is to go forward by ordinary mail or air mail. The bank must also be placed in a position to give appropriate instructions to its correspondent abroad and these instructions should cover points which are liable to come up when the draft gets to its destination. The following are examples of some of the instructions which might be given in varying circumstances:

Hold for arrival of goods.
Protest for non-acceptance.
Protest for non-payment.
Collect bank charges.
Waive bank charges if refused by drawee.
Collect at selling rate for demand drafts on . . . Remit proceeds by cable at our expense.
Allow drawee interest at . . . % per annum if paid before maturity.
In case of dishonour, store and insure goods at our expense, cabling promptly.
In case of need, refer to . . . who is hereby empowered to . . . and advise us immediately by air mail (cable).

In some countries it is not the practice of the Exchange Control authorities to make foreign exchange available immediately for collections. In fact, in some of them the documents now have not the same control that they once did and on occasion it is the practice to surrender them against a provisional deposit in the local currency of the country together with the drawees undertaking to assume the risk of exchange fluctuations pending the availability of the appropriate foreign exchange for remittance abroad. The drawers' instructions to the bank should include his agreement to this procedure. Other types of instructions will be needed in certain cases and these will vary with circumstances. The objective should be to see that the collecting bank abroad is not left in doubt as to the action which they should take in possible or likely eventualities.

It is possible for collections to be drawn in such a way that interest is to be collected from the drawee over and above the face amount of the draft and where this is required, it should be enfaced on the draft itself by means of an appropriate clause, such as:

'Payable with interest at the rate of . . . % from date of draft to estimated arrival of return remittance in . . .'

or

'Payable at the collecting bank's selling rate for sight drafts on Canada plus interest at the rate of . . . % from date of draft to estimated date of arrival of return remittance in Canada.'

If remittance is required by cable, the clauses would be changed appropriately. The rate of interest inserted is usually that common in the country of destination.

In many cases, if desired, collections can be discounted with Canadian banks at the time of lodgment and, when expressed in foreign exchange, the proceeds sold to or deposited with the bank. This disposes of the exchange risk if the draft is paid promptly but creates an exchange risk if the draft is dishonoured. The availability for discount of a collection payable abroad depends, of course, upon the currency in which it is drawn, the term of the draft, the documents which are attached, but to a greater extent on the financial standing of the drawer and the drawee.

Letters of Credit

Letters of Credit are extremely useful documents in financing foreign trade and the financing of a very large proportion of world trade is handled by that method. They are most adaptable and can be made to fit the requirements of almost any movement of goods under most circumstances. They vary, therefore, from country to country, from commodity to commodity, and between one method of shipment and another. While contracts in themselves, they do not constitute or replace sales contracts between buyers and sellers, but facilitate the carrying out of the latter. In all cases they carry an obligation of the issuer—in these days usually a bank — but the extent of these obligations varies from one credit to the next, and of course are no better than the standing and reputation of the issuer. It cannot, therefore, be taken for granted that every letter of credit is uniform with ever other or that they remove all liability from the beneficiary.

They are at times irrevocable and at others revocable, at times carry the obligation only of the bank abroad, and sometimes carry in addition the obligation not only of the bank abroad but also of a bank in Canada or the United States. They can be opened in such a way that the seller receives payment in Canada without further recourse on him, though never remove the responsibility for the sales contract to be duly and properly fulfilled. On the other hand, they may serve only the purpose of providing prompt cash in Canada with certain rights of recourse in some circumstances.

Their establishment by a bank abroad at the request of the buyer usually involves him in some expense and in the use of his credit, thereby adding some expense to the cost of the goods, so that they cannot, in face of competition, be requested in connection with every sale. The possibility of asking for payment in the form of a letter of credit should not, however, be overlooked and, if it is considered desirable that a letter of credit should be obtained, it is advisable to be somewhat specific in describing the type of letter of credit expected.

When details are received of a letter of credit which has been opened, it is important that its terms be studied and found acceptable. If unacceptable, request for amendment should be made immediately to the buyer so that no difficulty or delay will take place when the time comes to use the letter of credit. It is important also that the terms of the letter of credit be adhered to accurately and thoroughly since all letters of credit have an expiry date, either fixed in advance or at the pleasure of the issuer, and if the drafts and documents, upon presentation to a bank in Canada, are found out of order, the credit may have expired before the documents can be amended or corrected.

Space does not permit of a full description of the types of letters of credit or of all the documents for which they may call and the manner in which they should be prepared. In general, however, these documents must describe the goods at least as well as described in the letter of credit and must be in such negotiable shape that they control fully the eventual delivery of the goods, as well as guard against loss or damage while in transit. With shipments to some countries they often call for drafts on the buyer, though it is more usual for letters of credit to provide for drafts on a particular bank, and one of their important functions is to provide access to the principal money markets of the world so that interest costs involved are on an international level.

EXPORT PRICES

This chapter is based on an address to the Export Study Club of Toronto by Richard B. Spiro, Export Manager, The Coleman Lamp & Stove Company Limited, Toronto.

AMONG the so-called three P's of Export — namely Product, Price and Promotion — under the present circumstances of reappearing keen competition, Pricing is of paramount importance. This subject embraces the principles of price calculation and also the method of quotation. The former is, of course, of prime importance in establishing prices which will be competitive in the foreign market, while still allowing an adequate return to the exporter in terms of contributing to the profit of his overall operation. The latter is concerned with the necessity for quoting in such a way that the overseas customer can readily calculate his landed cost and compare it with competitive offerings; in short, making it easy for him to buy.

Calculation of Export Prices

While export prices will necessarily bear a fairly close relationship to domestic prices, and will perhaps need adjustment in the light of prices of competitive merchandise, the theoretically correct method is to calculate prices based on the actual cost of producing, selling and shipping the goods, providing, in addition, for the coverage of general overhead expenses and an adequate net profit.

These costs may be divided into three general classifications:

(1) Direct materials and labour (at standard or normal costs applicable to the product being offered, less drawback of duties paid on imported components or raw materials).

(2) Factory overhead (which should be calculated and apportioned on the basis of the average of the plant capacity occupied in the production of goods for export).

(3) Sales and General overhead.

In every business there are many items of cost which are not especially attributable to any particular phase of the operation, but which must be covered if the business is to operate at all. In tabulating costs for export purposes, every effort should be made to eliminate those costs which do not bear any direct relation to the export operation. The examination can be made particularly searching in those businesses where export sales form only a small proportion of total sales.

The expenses of the export operation itself will include such items as: Export department salaries, travelling expenses, catalogues and promotional literature, export advertising, commissions to travellers and to representatives abroad, transportation to the agreed point of delivery (see below), packing and shipping materials and labour, legal expenses, patents and trademark fees, office supplies, postage and cables, taxes, rent, insurance, interest and exchange, provision for bad debts, etc. The tabulation of the expenses and the preparation of a budgetary Profit and Loss Statement will permit the export executive to arrive at quotations based on factory cost by indicating the percentage mark-up which must be added to factory cost to cover the expenses of the export operations and to produce the desired margin of net profit.

Fixed and Variable Costs

In the analysis of costs and expenses it will be found that certain items will be characterized as fixed charges and are independent of production or sales volume. Others vary directly and automatically with the volume of goods produced and sold, while a third variety may be described as controllable and bears a more or less direct relation to the volume of business. Examples of "fixed" charges are civic taxes, administration, rent, etc. Charges which vary in direct ratio to volume include direct labour and materials, commissions, etc. In the third category are such items as export advertising, travelling expenses, clerical costs, etc.

In a market where very keen competition is being faced, a careful examination of the relationships between these cost categories may be the means of determining whether a price can be quoted which will be competitive, or in other words, whether an export order can be obtained at all. In many organizations, export business represents only a comparatively small percentage of the total turnover and, in such cases, it may be argued that, where necessary, an export price which covers the variable and controllable export costs but disregards all or a portion of the fixed charges will still be profitable from the point of view of the overall operation. In such an organization, it may be assumed that the fixed expenses will be the same whether or not this export business is added to the domestic business. The export order, so obtained, is therefore a means of employing plant capacity, which may not otherwise be profitably engaged, and to absorb a portion, though not by domestic standards its full share, of the fixed expenses of the business.

If, however, export business represents more than, say, 15% to 20% of the total turnover, it may be clearly impossible to charge the whole of the fixed expenses of the organization against that part of the production which is sold in the domestic market, as this may price these products out of the domestic market.

Price Quotations and Foreign Trade Terms

A significant factor in the quotation of prices is the cost of transporting the goods to the point of delivery indicated in the sales contract. This point is designated by certain internationally accepted "foreign trade terms".

The foreign trade terms indicate the geographic point in the line of connection between seller and buyer up to which the seller pays all transportation and insurance costs (or in other words, includes transportation and insurance costs in his quotation) and from which point onwards the buyer pays all transportation or insurance costs (or in other words, from which point onwards the seller adds transportation and insurance costs to his quotation in case he, acting on behalf of the buyer, prepays these expenses). The foreign trade terms further define in the line of connection between seller and buyer the point of delivery, which means the point up to which the seller holds title to the goods and is therefore responsible for them as far as damages, losses, etc., are concerned and where the title then passes from the seller to the buyer, who from this point onwards is responsible for any losses or damages.

As one proceeds along this line of connection from the seller to the buyer, it will progressively become easier for the buyer to calculate his landed costs. If one quotes, for instance, "F.O.B. Factory", which is often called "ex works", then the buyer, in order to arrive at his landed costs, would not only have to figure out his import Customs Duty, the landing charges in his own port of arrival, the ocean freight and marine insurance, but he would also have to know the inland transport in the country of supply such as for instance, the cost of transporting the merchandise from Winnipeg to Montreal; it is quite clear that it would be difficult for the importer in a far away country to obtain information on the cost of inland rail transport in Canada, which, in the case of an "F.O.B. Factory" or "ex works" quotation would be necessary to permit him to figure out his landed costs. If we quote "F.A.S. Vessel" (Free Along Side) or "F.O.B. Vessel" (Free on Board Vessel) at a named Port of Sailing, then, in order to arrive at his landed costs, he would only have to know the ocean freight rate, marine insurance rate and the actual landing costs and Customs

Duties which occur in his own country.

With competition becoming keener all the time and with exporters in other countries used to making it easy for their overseas customers to figure out their landed costs, it has become necessary to proceed in one's quotations along this line of connection between seller and buyer to points closer to the buyer, and to quote prices for delivery at the port of destination such as for instance: C & F (Cost and Freight, which would only leave to the buyer to figure out and pay the marine insurance premium); or: C.I.F. (which means Cost, Insurance excluding war risk insurance, and Freight); or: C.I.F. & C. (which with the last letter "C" includes also the commission which the buyer may possibly pay to a buying house or broker whom he may employ in the country of supply); or, the quotation may even be: C.I.F.C. & I. (which with the last letter "I" indicates that also bank interest, in the case of extended credit terms, is included in the quotation and will not have to be added to the quoted price by the buyer).

Foreign Trade Terms—Definitions

In an effort to define in a uniform manner certain well known terms generally used in making price quotations, there has been developed in various countries a set of rules or definitions which have been adopted by certain trade organizations and others setting out in some detail the obligations of seller and buyer attaching to the particular terms. In the United States the National Foreign Trade Council Incorporated, the National Council of American Importers Incorporated, and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America on July 30, 1941, through a joint committee, approved of what are known as "Revised American Foreign Trade Definitions – 1941." These follow in general, although not in detail, the International Rules for the Interpretation of Trade Terms – generally known as "Incoterms, 1953," defined by the International Chamber of Commerce. It should be understood that the use of such rules is optional and that the approval of the particular rules referred to by designated trade bodies does not lend to them the force of law. Nevertheless, where a price quotation in accordance with these definitions and a contract of sale is concluded with a statement that the price is subject to these definitions, it would have considerable force in determining what is understood by the parties to the contract in respect to such price quotation.

While specific reference has been made to the "Revised American Foreign Trade Definitions – 1941" and to "Incoterms 1953," it is essential to bear in mind, as previously pointed out, that foreign trade definitions have been issued by organizations in various parts of the world and the courts of different countries have interpreted these definitions in different ways. To reduce the opportunities for misunderstanding to a minimum, therefore, it is fundamental that there be agreement between seller and buyer as to what is actually meant when a price quotation is made. A buyer in a foreign country who is familiar with definitions endorsed by an organization in the foreign country and the court decisions interpreting such definitions, on receiving a price quotation from a seller in Canada is constrained to construe it in the light of such definitions unless the quotation is clarified by a stipulation as to what definitions apply in making the price quotation.

In addition to the commonly used terms, there are many others, some of which are found in particular trades only. Where definitions are not formally approved and adopted by trade organizations for general use, it is necessary that a seller and buyer should specify exactly what is understood in respect thereto, indicating the obligations of both parties so that there may be no misunderstanding. In respect to "C.I.F." contracts, it further should be pointed out that the International Law Association adopted certain rules relating thereto in 1928 which, as later modified in 1931, are known as the "Warsaw-Oxford Rules."

An extensive list of technical abbreviations used in foreign trade and exchange transactions is given in Appendix III.

MARINE INSURANCE

IN OCEAN carriage the steamship company is not obligated to assume certain risks (such as "perils of the seas," etc.), and this fact will be made clear by the examination of the terms of the ocean Bill of Lading. Marine insurance, which is perhaps the oldest form of insurance, is designed to deal with all the various types of risk for which the carrier is not to be held accountable.

This is a complicated field and it is important that the exporter obtain adequate coverage of the risks, while at the same time avoiding the unnecessary cost of over-insurance. Matters which may be covered in the policy include the basic coverage of marine risks, war risks, risks of strikes and similar disturbances, partial loss, etc. It is usually desirable to obtain "warehouse to warehouse" coverage provided by Marine Extension Clauses, in other words to cover the export shipment from the time it leaves the exporter's factory to the point of its arrival at the premises of the consignee.

An export shipment may be insured under a specific policy issued for that particular shipment, or the exporter may arrange for floating policies which cover all his shipments properly declared through a copy of the individual insurance certificate sent to the Insurance Company.

The exporter should consult a reliable marine insurance broker in order to obtain the policy which best suits his particular needs and the requirements of his customer abroad.

SHIPPING AND DOCUMENTATION

In all aspects of export trade it is vital that great care be taken in understanding and complying with the requirements of the buyer and the regulations of the importing country, as well as Canadian Government regulations where they apply. Mistakes and misunderstandings can be costly, and, because of the distances involved, can give rise to lengthy delay.

These principles apply in the packing of the goods, which must be adequate to give satisfactory protection against physical and chemical damages as well as against pilferage throughout the voyage and yet not so elaborate as to increase the cost to an unnecessary extent. The marking should be durable in character and should be such as to properly identify and aid in the carriage of the shipment to its destination. The need of care is also apparent in the selection of the transportation routing, and in the appropriate description of the goods involved in order that the most favourable ocean transport rate may be secured.

The documentation of an export shipment calls for meticulous attention to detail. Here again errors or irregularities may result in heavy fines or the assessment of excessive rates of duty in the importing country, and may also make it difficult or impossible for the exporter to receive payment under the terms of a Letter of Credit.

There are several documents required for most overseas shipments, each of which is a a study in itself:

(a) Ocean Bill of Lading—which may be a Straight Bill authorizing delivery of the goods to the named consignee, or an Order Bill which requires presentation of a negotiable original in order to claim the shipment (may require legalization by the Consul of the country to which the goods are consigned);

(b) The Commercial Invoice (may require legalization by the Consul of the importing country, and may also require certification as to origin and value of the goods by a competent authority such as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association);

(c) The Insurance Policy or Certificate;

(d) A draft or Bill of Exchange whose tenor reflects the terms of payment agreed between exporter and buyer;

(e) Customs Invoice or Certificate of Origin (Commonwealth countries);

(f) Consular Invoice and/or Certificate of Origin (for non-Commonwealth countries) which is subject to certification by the Consul of the country concerned (many non-Commonwealth countries require, in addition, an endorsation or certificate as to origin and value of the goods, signed by a competent authority such as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association);

(g) Packing list;

(h) Import License and/or Exchange Permit must, in the case of certain countries,

be obtained from the importer and presented when applying for consular visa of customs documents. In the case of some countries it is sufficient if the number of the import license is indicated on all documents.

As far as Canadian Government regulations are concerned, the Export Entry Form B-13 is to be furnished, and an Export Permit may be required depending upon the nature of the goods and the country of ultimate destination.

Where imported materials or parts are used in, wrought into, attached to, or consumed in the manufacture of articles in Canada, and such articles are subsequently exported, the Canadian Government allows a drawback of 99% of all duties and taxes paid on such imported materials or parts. The claim form is known as K-32 and, if the importer of the materials or parts is not the manufacturer claiming the drawback, it will be necessary for the latter to secure from the Canadian importer a certificate of importation and sale. There are certain documents that have to be presented with the claim for drawback, such as the export invoice and the export entry form. An extra copy of the latter (Form B-13) should be completed and handed to the transportation company or parcel post authorities along with the other copies, with a note thereon requesting that the Collector of Customs (at the last port from which the goods leave Canada) stamp, sign and return it to the exporter for export drawback purposes.

In all these matters, the exporter who is unfamiliar with the procedure or with the requirements of the market to which he is shipping should consult the Department of Trade and Commerce, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and other expert advisers, and he may find it advisable to engage the services of a competent international freight forwarder. The Tariff Department of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association can supply members with summaries of the customs documentation requirements of any country, and time should be allowed to study these requirements well in advance of making a shipment.

GOVERNMENT EXPORT SERVICES

THE GOVERNMENT of Canada provides many facilities to help Canadian manufacturers find export outlets for their goods. Canadian Trade Commissioners are always eager to bring Canadian manufacturers together with prospective importers in the countries where they are stationed. Yet the Director of the Canadian Trade Commissioner Service, in an address to members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, pointed out that Canadian businessmen are not taking full advantage of the services offered.

He said that Canada has perhaps the finest government trade promotion force of any country in the world. No country has a better or a keener group of trade commissioners — a finer corps of commercial intelligence reporters — than in the Canadian Trade Commissioner Service. There are 121 trade commissioners in 56 strategic centres of the world. As taxpayers, Canada is footing a bill of something like $2 million annually to maintain these men in the field to dig up business for Canada, to send back information, trade inquiries, business openings. They are there to help the business man who travels to find new markets, or to make contacts for the man who is unable to explore for himself.

Reports received at Head Office indicate that a great many Canadian firms are not taking advantage of this service. More than that, many of them are literally taking the inquiries — the offers of business — and are throwing them in the wastepaper basket. Paying for them and throwing them away! That's our problem, and it is a problem, because the time may come when a lot of firms in this great country will be crying for business and wondering why they haven't any export trade.

"Foreign Trade"

Market conditions and regulations change

constantly. To help Canadian exporters and importers keep in touch, the Department of Trade and Commerce publishes a fortnightly magazine, "Foreign Trade", which gives the most recent and authoritative information about trade possibilities. "Foreign Trade" contains information on economic conditions abroad, the trade situation, business methods, tariff and import regulations and other data of value to the exporter. An up-to-date list of trade commissioners, with addresses, is published each month.

Most of the articles in the magazine are written by trade commissioners in the field who know the markets intimately and who are well informed on what Canadian manufacturers have to offer. For example, there are articles dealing with changes in the import controls imposed by various overseas countries and detailed information is given regarding those products which are of special interest to Canadian manufacturers. Other articles report on conditions in particular industries in the country in which the trade commissioner is situated or give a factual analysis of the economic health of a whole area.

CANADIAN TRADE COMMISSIONER SERVICE

The Canadian Trade Commissioner Service, with headquarters at Ottawa, has offices under trade commissioners in many overseas countries. An Assistant Deputy Minister has charge of the work of the Service at home and abroad.

The headquarters staff includes five area trade officers, each in charge of a world trade area, as follows: Commonwealth, Europe, the Far East, Latin America, and the United States. The Area Trade Officer is responsible for co-ordinating the work of trade commissioners in his area. Area Trade Officers, who are trade commissioners on home duty, are also responsible for general information and inquiries regarding trade in their respective areas and should, whenever possible, be consulted by Canadian businessmen prior to travelling abroad.

There are fifty-six trade offices abroad, located in most of the strategic commercial centres of the world. In addition to the trade commissioner. many offices have one or more assistant trade commissioners, depending upon the importance of the post to Canadian trade. In those centres where Canada maintains a diplomatic mission, the trade commissioner is attached to the mission as a commercial diplomatic officer and is given the title of Minister (Commercial), Commercial Counsellor, or Commercial Secretary, according to his rank. When attached to a consulate, he carries the title Deputy Consul (Commercial), Consul (Commercial), or Vice-Consul (Commercial), according to rank, in addition to trade commissioner.

The duties of the trade commissioner are to introduce Canadian exporters and importers to the corresponding businessmen of other countries; to study conditions and needs of the territories where they are located; to obtain and forward inquiries for Canadian goods to headquarters at Ottawa and to Canadian exporters; to report on import requirements in their territories and to make direct inquiries or conduct preliminary surveys regarding the potential market for any product, reporting the exact kinds of goods wanted, competition to be met, methods of packing, shipping or billing, tariffs and trade regulations affecting these goods, etc.

With regard to imports, trade commissioners assist Canadian importers and manufacturers who desire advice on the present and prospective supply of goods and materials available in various countries, best methods of purchase, methods of approach to overseas suppliers, prices, specifications, packing, etc.

Trade developments the world over are reported by trade commissioners to the Department at Ottawa, and this information is available to all Canadian exporters and importers. They also prepare periodic reports on trade, business and financial conditions, markets for particular commodities, materials available for supply for import into Canada, and other related subjects for publication in Foreign Trade or in pamphlet form.

Trade Commissioners' Tours

The periodical return of trade commissioners for official tours of Canada is one of the most important factors in effecting practical co-operation between Canadian firms interested in foreign trade and businessmen in other countries. The trade commissioner can, during the course of his tour, call upon or discuss export and import problems with practically every firm interested in exporting to, or importing from, his territory. The department endeavours to bring back the trade commissioners by rotation, giving special consideration to officers in tropical or unhealthy posts; these visits are subject to the exigencies of trading conditions and of the Service generally. Well in advance of the time of arrival in Canada, individual exporters and importers are circularized for the purpose of arranging appointments. In addition, the department publishes a notice in Foreign Trade inviting firms who may be interested in any particular territory to state whether an interview is desired. The names of such firms, together with those with whom the trade commissioner has been in communication, form the basis of the itinerary. Businessmen anxious to interview any trade commissioner on tour may do so by communicating in advance with the Canadian Trade Commissioner Service or with the Canadian Manufacturers' Association or the local Chamber of Commerce.

Assistance Available from Canadian Trade Commissioners

Canadian exporters can obtain assistance and information from branches and divisions of the Department of Trade and Commerce, including officers of the Canadian Trade Commissioner Service in the posts abroad. Similar guidance is available to overseas traders interested in the development of closer commercial relations with this country.

In addition to the information which Canadian Trade Commissioners can provide direct, the Department of Trade and Commerce maintains a number of services in Ottawa which will prove helpful to prospective exporters. Preliminary inquiries should be submitted to the Commodities Branch or the Agriculture and Fisheries Branch, when relating to specific products, to Area Trade Officers of the Canadian Trade Commissioner Service, when dealing with specific foreign markets or sources of supply, and to the International Trade Relations Branch when dealing with tariffs, trade restrictions, licensing, etc. Other branches which can render special services are the Industrial Development Branch, Transportation and Communications Division, Export and Import Permit Division, and the Information Branch.

Canadian exporters should request a listing in the Exporters' Directory, which is maintained by the Commodities Branch and supplied to Canadian Trade Commissioners throughout the world.

A list of Canadian Trade Commissioners and their respective territories is published periodically in "Foreign Trade" and "Commerce Exterieur", issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce. The specific information obtainable from Canadian Trade Commissioners is listed below for the convenience of exporters.

Market Requirements — The trade commissioner can advise on:

(a) present and prospective market conditions;
(b) types and classes of goods offering or required;
(c) specifications, where required;
(d) competition;
(e) suitable buying and selling methods.

Sales Channels — The trade commissioner can:

(a) assist in finding responsible firms in a position to act as agents, distributors or buyers;
(b) advise on methods of sales approach and expansion.

Business Terms — The trade commissioner can give full information on:

(a) current basis of price quotation;
(b) current terms of payment;
(c) financing of shipments;
(d) exchange regulations.

Samples and Literature — The trade commissioner can:

(a) recommend methods of distributing catalogues, price lists and other trade literature;
(b) recommend methods of handling samples.

Credit Information — The trade commissioner can:

(a) furnish confidential guidance on the status of overseas as well as of Canadian firms;
(b) give confidential reports on the activities of overseas firms acting on behalf of Canadian business houses.

Tariffs and Regulations — The trade commissioner can supply information on:

(a) customs tariff rates and regulations;
(b) other government regulations, prohibitions, and the like;
(c) documentation requirements, such as invoicing for customs purposes;
(d) certification of documents;
(e) marking and packing;
(f) import and export quotas and permits.

Debts and Difficulties — The trade commissioner can:

(a) give advice and assistance toward the settlement of difficulties that may arise between Canadian and overseas businessmen;
(b) give guidance in respect to the recovery of debts;
(c) make suggestions as to the disposal of goods which have not been accepted.

General — The advice of the trade commissioner can be sought in regard to:

(a) the most suitable advertising media;
(b) storage facilities;
(c) shipping services;
(d) regulations concerning commercial travellers;
(e) travel procedure;
(f) patents, brands and trademarks;
(g) standards;
(h) other subjects related to international trade.

Information Needed by Trade Commissioners

When making inquiries from trade commissioners, the exporter should:

(a) state whether his firm is a producer, agent or merchant;
(b) give an accurate description of the goods, their specifications, qualities and grades;
(c) bear in mind that prices, f.o.b. factory, are of no use in practically all cases and that prices must be quoted c.i.f. or c. & f.;
(d) indicate terms of payment desired;
(e) where helpful, give technical information concerning the use of the product;
(f) make clear the time lapse between receipt of order and possible shipment;
(g) where necessary, stipulate quantities for which orders will be accepted;
(h) give details of any previous agents or selling or buying connections in the territory and, if connections still exist, their relationship with the fresh contacts sought;
(i) state any previous experience in the territory.

COMMODITIES BRANCH

The principal role of the Commodities Branch is to direct the attention of Canadian manufacturers to business opportunities abroad, and to supply information to Trade Commissioners concerning interests of Canadian exporters. The Branch maintains close connections with the business community through Commodity Officers specialized in various commodity trades. The Branch is also responsible for administration of the Export and Import Permits Act, and for the continuous attention which must be given to Canada's participation in international arrangements for control of strategic materials.

In the field of trade promotion it is the duty of officers of the Branch to ensure that trading opportunities brought to light by the Department's widespread activities are made known to Canadian business, and that exporters are aware of the services that the Department has to offer. Commodity officers are called upon for a variety of specialized trade promotion efforts. These extend from plant visits and interviews, preparation of trade studies and market surveys, to making arrangements for the exhibiting of goods abroad and the introduction of Canadian products into new markets.

The trade promotion work of the Branch begins at the point of finding Canadian products on which to concentrate promotional efforts. Great emphasis is placed on the discovery of products which might be exported or exported in greater volume. When such products are discovered, detailed reports are sent to Trade Commissioners throughout the world to encourage market research and promotion.

See Index of Subjects Page 242

The sale of certain products in export markets is facilitated through their display in fairs and exhibitions abroad. This particularly applies to fully manufactured goods. The Commodities Branch, working in co-operation with the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, is at times able to arrange for a trial presentation of Canadian products in European trade fairs and in the United States market. Assistance and information is also available to Canadian exporters who wish to display goods in American trade shows.

The Branch is responsible for administration of the United Kingdom Token Import Scheme, insofar as certification of vouchers and issuance of new quotas is concerned. It assumes responsibility for issuance of allocations and vouchers required under the British West Indies Trade Liberalization Plan.

The Transportation and Trade Services Division of the Branch studies and keeps business interests advised on developments in shipping, road, rail and air transportation relative to foreign trade. The Division maintains current information on services and facilities, either foreign or Canadian, that in any way affect the transportation of Canadian exports and imports. Data on restrictive measures affecting cargo movements, port charges, trade routes, changing currency restrictions and taxation of transportation earnings is also available and furnished to Canadian firms. The Canadian businessmen can look to the Division for counsel and assistance on cargo movements, cargo claims and other transportation matters. It also deals with questions concerning cable, telegraph and telephone services abroad, which have an effect on Canadian foreign trade.

AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES BRANCH

The Agriculture and Fisheries Branch consists of three divisions, the Grain Division, the Food and Agriculture Division and the Fisheries Division. It is concerned with the promotion of trade in agricultural and fisheries products. This includes the planning and co-ordination of promotional activities, as well as programming, analysing and disseminating information on foreign agriculture and fisheries.

The Grain Division is responsible for liaison between the Canadian Wheat Board and the Department of Trade and Commerce, while the Food and Agriculture and Fisheries Divisions maintain close contact with the Departments of Agriculture and Fisheries, respectively, on matters pertaining to production and availability of supplies. All three divisions are in constant touch with the trade in relation to trade promotion.

The branch works closely with the Canadian Trade Commissioner Service, which includes a number of officers with training in agriculture and fisheries, situated in countries which are either important markets for Canadian agricultural or fisheries products, or with which Canada competes for world markets. These officers supply information dealing with various aspects of agriculture or fisheries in those countries. This material, which is augmented by similar information from other members of the trade commissioner service, is reviewed and analysed by the branch and made available to appropriate government departments and boards, as well as associations and others who may be interested.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE RELATIONS BRANCH

The International Trade Relations Branch has major responsibilities in the development and conduct of Canada's trade and commercial relations with other countries. In addition to participation in trade and tariff negotiations, the Branch provides immediate and direct service to Canadian exporters through initiating consultation with other governments on particular trade problems and through supplying detailed and up-to-date information on foreign tariffs, import and exchange controls and other foreign regulations and restrictions affecting export sales of their products.

The Branch follows closely commercial and economic developments at home and abroad to enable views to be formulated in the interests of Canadian trade. In respect of trade and tariff negotiations detailed preparatory work is carried out through trade analysis and in consultation with trading interests with a view to expanding export opportunities for Canadian products. This preparatory work is followed through by the Branch in the direct process of negotiation with other countries. Close attention is paid to the conduct of Canada's trade with particular reference to Canada's rights and obligations under international agreements and arrangements. When Canadian trading interests are adversely affected or threatened by actions of other countries appropriate remedial action is initiated by the Branch. Such action includes efforts to find practical solutions to particular tariff problems, the relaxation of quantitative restrictions and in general to work for the removal of barriers to Canadian exports to other countries.

To assist Canadian firms in their export trade, the Branch maintains complete and up-to-date information on Customs regulations and tariffs, import and exchange controls, documentation requirements, sanitary marking and labelling regulations, and other regulations and requirements of other countries directly affecting trade. Details of these regulations are supplied on request. New measures in this field are publicized through the Department's official publication "Foreign Trade" and by other means.

INFORMATION BRANCH

"Promotion through Print" might well be the slogan of the Information Branch. Wherever the external trade of Canada can be assisted and promoted by the publication of commercial data, there is the field of the Information Branch.

The objectives of the Information Branch are (a) to acquaint Canadian businessmen in particular and the public generally with the facilities offered by the Department of Trade and Commerce; (b) to stimulate in Canada an appreciation of the importance of export and import trade to the Canadian economy and to cultivate an informed approach to foreign trade transactions; and (c) to encourage foreign businessmen to consider Canada as a possible source of supply for goods required by them and as a market for their own commodities.

The Information Branch is responsible for publication of "Foreign Trade" and "Commerce Exterieur", which contain reports from Canadian Trade Commissioners on market and economic conditions in their respective territories, reports and articles by Commodity Officers and other personnel of the Department of Trade and Commerce, in Ottawa, trade and tariff information, foreign exchange quotations and other information of value to the commercial community. The annual subscription is $2.00 for delivery in Canada and $5.00 for delivery abroad.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BRANCH

The Industrial Development Branch works closely with interested parties in connection with (1) the establishment of new industries, (2) the utilization of excess manufacturing capacity, and (3) the development of new products, including those suitable for export markets. Most of the work carried out by the Branch is undertaken on a confidential basis, as requested by the principals seeking assistance. The Branch maintains close liaison with provincial, municipal and other agencies concerned with industrial development.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT EXHIBITION COMMISSION

Under Order-in-Council P.C.4171, the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, Department of Trade and Commerce, is responsible for the organization and administration of all Canadian exhibits in international exhibitions and fairs—cultural, informational and trade—in which the Canadian Government decides to participate.

The Commission is required to work out methods by which practical assistance and advice can be extended to Canadian manufacturers and producers to increase the sale of their goods in countries abroad through the medium of exhibitions and trade fairs. In addition, the Commission endeavours to advise exhibitors and their agents on the best means of displaying Canadian products in countries abroad.

The Canadian Government Exhibition Commission maintains an office and plant in Ottawa, as well as a small branch in the United Kingdom.

EXPORT CREDITS INSURANCE CORPORATION

This Crown Corporation was established by Act of Parliament in 1944. Administered by a Board of Directors, including the Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce, the Deputy Minister of Finance and the Governor of the Bank of Canada, the Corporation insures exporters against non-payment by foreign buyers due to some of the major risks of loss involved in foreign trade. The Head Office of the Corporation is in Ottawa and branch offices are maintained in Montreal and Toronto. It is represented in Vancouver by an official of the Department of Trade and Commerce. An Advisory Council, consisting of members from all parts of Canada representing the services of banking, manufacturing industries, and the primary industries of farming, fishing, lumbering and mining, meets from time to time with the Directors and Officers to discuss the Corporation's operations and to advise on policy matters.

See Index of Subjects Page 242

The insurance is available under two main classifications:

(a) General Commodities sold on short credit terms which are usual for the particular trade concerned;

(b) Capital Goods sold on medium credit terms which often extend over a few years.

The General Commodities Policies are issued to cover an exporter's entire sales for a period of a year, with renewal privileges, whereas Capital Goods Policies are issued on an individual basis to cover each specific contract of sale.

The risks insured by Export Credits Insurance Policies include: insolvency or protracted default on the part of the buyer; exchange restrictions in the buyer's country preventing the transfer of funds to Canada; cancellation of an import licence or the imposition of restrictions on the import of goods not previously subject to restriction; the occurrence of war between the buyer's country and Canada; or of war, revolution, etc., in the buyer's country; and additional transport or insurance charges occasioned by interruption or diversion of voyage outside Canada or the continental United States of America.

Premium rates for this insurance protection are nominal and have averaged less than 1% on all business done by the Corporation to date. Policies are issued on a co-insurance basis and the Corporation insures exporters up to 85% of the selling price.

BUREAU OF STATISTICS

The Bureau of Statistics issues detailed monthly, quarterly and annual reports on Canada's foreign trade which are extremely useful to exporters and those interested in developing export markets. The monthly reports give information on trade by commodities, showing for each of the commodities listed the total quantity and the value of the trade and the quantity and value of trade in the commodity with each individual country. Quarterly reports record trade by countries, showing for each foreign country the quantity and value of trade for every commodity separately listed. A final annual report in three volumes provides complete statistical detail, with comparative figures for two previous years, analyses of the statistics, and information on tariff revenues. Preliminary bulletins supply advance summaries of trade information each month.

The Bureau also issues semi-annual and annual reviews of Canada's trade, which summarize and interpret the detailed statistics and direct attention to the more important changes they reveal. From these figures the businessman can see what Canadian goods are going to foreign markets and to some extent assess the possibilities for export of his own products.

Statistics on the Canadian balance of international payments are released in quarterly and annual reports. These can also be useful to the Canadian manufacturer in studying the international background affecting trade.

All these trade publications—together with numerous others dealing statistically with manufacturing and a wide range of Canadian economic and social activities, many of which provide useful information in planning marketing and production programs for particular industries—are available at nominal rates from the Bureau of Statistics and from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa. Information as to titles, contents and prices of its reports and bulletins is contained in the Bureau's "Current Publications", copies of which may be obtained free on request.

EXPORT SERVICES OF THE CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION

Practical Assistance to Exporters

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, with its specialized Service Departments and its Division and Branch offices across Canada, is in a particularly strong position to assist its members in developing Export Trade.

More than 2,000 firms in the membership of the Association are interested in export, while many hundreds of the Association's members are substantial importers of materials and equipment. The Association also assists members with their import problems.

Service Departments

Established over 86 years ago, the Association's growth has paralleled that of manufacturing industry and export trade in Canada and it has built up Service Departments with a background of experience and information extending over many years. Indeed, export trade is specifically mentioned as a prime object of the Association in its Constitution, which provides that "The objects of this Association shall be to promote Canadian industries and to further the interests of Canadian manufacturers and exporters, and to render such services and assistance to the members of the Association and to manufacturers and exporters generally, as the Association may deem advisable from time to time."

There are many complications connected with doing export business. Questions concerning the transportation of goods overseas, the tariffs and other trading restrictions of importing countries, marine insurance, trade practices, trade statistics, credit information, translations, invoicing requirements and a multitude of other incidentals constantly arise.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, particularly through its Commercial Intelligence, Tariff and Transportation Departments, can be of great help in dealing with these problems. Having experienced management and the cumulative knowledge of many years' studies, these Departments are able to render a comprehensive service to members, covering all phases of export business.

The London, England, office of the Association, i.e., The Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain Inc., handles a variety of matters relating to Anglo-Canadian trade.

Export Trade Committee

As a means of co-ordinating, at a single committee level, the mechanics of dealing with policy matters over the whole range of Association studies, services and activities in the field of export, a new C.M.A. Export Trade Committee was formed in February, 1957. This Committee will act as a joint subcommittee of the Commercial Intelligence and Tariff Committees and its scope will be exclusively in matters affecting the export trade of Canada's manufacturing industries, including reference to the impact of imports. It will co-ordinate the Association's export studies which were previously carried on under the auspices of the other committees and will make recommendations as to the Association's policy and action in relation to matters which arise from time to time affecting the export trade of member companies.

Facilities for Assisting Exporters

The Association provides an extensive range of direct and indirect services, enters many activities, provides information on a large number of topics and makes specialized studies of a variety of matters of interest to

 - Parcel Post
 - Rail and ocean freight
- Restrictions, trade and exchange
- Statistics on trade of Canada and foreign countries
- Steamship services
- Tariffs, Empire and foreign
- Taxation abroad
- Trade agreements
- Trade fairs and exhibitions
- Trade terms and definitions
- Translations of foreign correspondence

Canadian Trade Index

The Association performs a particularly valuable service in the interests of Canadian export trade by compiling and publishing annually "The Canadian Trade Index," a volume of over 1100 pages, containing a complete list of all Canadian manufacturers with a carefully classified list of their products, together with much other useful information for industry and for firms engaged in export and import business. With the cooperation of the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, copies of "The Canadian Trade Index" are distributed to hundreds of importers in overseas countries through the offices of the Canadian Government Trade Commissioner Service.

Industrial Canada

"Industrial Canada", as the official monthly publication of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, is issued for the same purpose as the Association was formed — to promote Canadian industries and to further the interests of Canadian manufacturers and exporters. As well as containing a great deal of information concerning the development of Canadian industry and articles of interest to manufacturers generally, news is published each month on a variety of matters affecting foreign trade in Canada and in other countries with which Canadian exporters do business. Such foreign developments as changes in exchange and customs regulations, export controls, import licensing requirements, customs tariffs, foreign exhibitions, transportation news, etc., all help to keep Canadian exporters up-to-date on trade requirements. Regular monthly features of special interest to exporters are to be found under the headings "Tariff News", "Trade Developments", "Transportation News", "Fairs, Exhibitions and Conferences", etc. In addition, from time to time, there are general articles on some important features of special interest to exporters.

Meetings and Conferences

The Association holds frequent meetings, large and small, to hear addresses on export trade, to entertain visitors from overseas, to discuss export problems and kindred matters and generally to promote the interests of Canadian exporters. At Annual General Meetings, largely attended Conferences on Export and International Trade are organized. The Export Study Clubs, organized in Toronto and Montreal under the auspices of the Commercial Intelligence Committee of the Association, are studying various phases of problems connected with export trade and hold regular meetings to discuss and exchange up-to-date information on export markets and techniques. During the season just past, the following topics held the attention of club meetings: "International Collections and Credits", a general review of exports and of the operations of the Canadian Government Trade Commissioner Service, Canadian participation in the 'Comptoir Suisse' at Lausanne, Switzerland, "The Practical Application of Statistics in Export Trade", "Aspects of Export Trade", recent events in the Middle East, United States customs procedures, "How to Get More Export Sales", markets in the Far East, "Signs and Portents in Africa".

In addition, the Export Study Clubs have organized special projects for the examination of export market possibilities and the study at first-hand of customs procedures in the United States and the transportation facilities through which foreign shipments are handled. In 1950, members of the Export Study Club of Toronto paid a two-day visit to Detroit, while in the same year the Montreal Club travelled to New York; in 1954 Montreal members joined with those from Toronto in another successful New York visit; in 1953, and again in 1957 both Clubs joined in visits to Ottawa; and on a number of occasions visits have been undertaken to water, rail and air traffic installations in the Montreal and Toronto areas, including the St. Lawrence Seaway project.

Policy on Export Trade

In connection with export and international trade a continuing study has been made of controls of materials, and the international currency situation. The Association maintains close co-operation with the Department of Trade and Commerce, the Department of Finance, the Department of External Affairs, and is in close touch with the Federation of British Industries, the National Association of Manufacturers in the United States, similar organizations in other countries, the International Chamber of Commerce, and the Inter-American Council of Commerce and Production.

The Association stands for and advocates the greatest possible trade between nations and believes that steadfast support should be given to existing international organizations and institutions in their efforts to solve the problems of world trade and finance. It recognizes that the well-being of the Canadian people depends to a great extent on the volume of Canada's export trade, which provides the means of purchasing necessary imports.

The Association believes that the extent of Canada's export trade depends to a great degree, upon the ingenuity and hard work of the many thousands of Canadian firms and individuals engaged in the export of foodstuffs, raw materials, manufactured goods and services. Exporters must have all possible knowledge of the trade practices and requirements covering export shipments and it is for this reason that the Association has paid so much attention to its specialized departmental services which have continuously expanded to keep abreast of the times.

In the increasingly complex modern world, however, government policy plays a growing part. Canadian Governments have always displayed a keen interest in the problems of exporters, and, wherever and whenever necessary, the Association has placed the views of exporters before the Government. Canadian manufacturers and exporters are particularly fortunate in being served by a Trade Commissioner Service which is second to none in the world, and the Association has had particularly cordial relationships with these officers who, on their Canadian tours, have made C.M.A. offices their headquarters for over fifty years.

Explanation of List

THE LIST beginning on the following page comprises the names and addresses, alphabetically arranged, of all firms appearing in the classified section of the Canadian Trade Index. In this list we have tried to give the users of the book some information that will be useful in getting into quick touch with the makers of any desired article.

No street addresses are given in Part 3 (the classified article section). These are recorded where necessary to complete the address in Part 2 (the alphabetical list).

We have not attempted to give, in this list, any full account of the products. These will all be found under separate headings in the classified section on pages 497 and following. Where the firm or company name does not indicate clearly the line of goods manufactured, some of the main articles produced, or the nature of the firm's business, are mentioned.

The address given is that of the main place of business in Canada, usually the head office, although it may be both factory and office address. The addresses given later, under "Factories," "Mills," or "Plants" are generally those of branch factories. Branch offices also are given.

For. Rep. or simply Rep. means foreign or other representative for export sales purposes.

The Cable addresses and codes will be found useful in initiating and transacting export business.

Names of new firms received too late for listing in the main body of the green section will be found under "Additions" at the end of this section.

The Editor.
